Working with the Scriptures (Luke 7:36 - 8:3)

I went to lunch with a friend recently. It was a lovely day so we decided to eat at a local restaurant that offers outside seating. The hostess greeted us at the door and invited us to seat ourselves wherever we were comfortable and soon our waitress arrived to take our order. We felt welcomed and cared for - all in all, a very pleasant experience. How different it would have been, had the hostess ignored us or the waitress been rude. While neither of these young women probably makes much money their attitude and demeanor reflect a most generous sense of hospitality.

"A Pharisee invited Jesus to dine with him." He gave him no water for his feet, no welcoming kiss yet, because of his status in the religious society of the day, he was considered a man of some stature. On the other hand, the 'sinful' woman (did the Pharisee really have no sin?) bathed Jesus' feet and anointed them with ointment. Jesus felt welcomed and cared for - not because of any action on the part of his prominent host but because of the hospitality of the woman who served him.

Later there would be other women - "Mary, called Magdalene (not to be confused with the sinful woman in the Pharisee's house)...Joanna, the wife of Chuza...Susanna and many others..." who would provide "...for them out of their resources..." Were they wealthy? Possibly. But it's not their wealth that made them noteworthy. The women are remembered because, like the sinful woman, they cared for Jesus and the Twelve with great love and care.

The young women in the restaurant would probably never think of comparing themselves to the holy women in the Gospel story. After all, they were only doing their job. But in so doing they provided for us out of their resources of courtesy and hospitality. Do we do as much for the people we meet in our workplace? Do we welcome and care for our customers and co-workers? Or are we more like the Pharisee - quick to condemn others but slow to recognize the Divine seated right at our own table?

The others at table said to themselves, "Who is this who even forgives sins?" But he said to the woman, "Your faith has saved you; go in peace." - Lk 7:48-50
